Animal controversy continues

Longo to ask Bay, county to give more or give up shelter

BY DENA BISNETTE

Waveland's first workshop meeting attracted animal comaldermen, but their discussion second. is expected to result in a breakup of an informal three-entity agreement for operation of the county's only animal shelter.

Mayor John Longo Jr. and two board members had decided last week to have Monday night workshops prior to regularly scheduled meetings for discussion purposes.

The two biggest topics of his go said Monday, have been the said. Hancock County Animal Commission's dispute with the Hancock County Humane Society the three entities as well as Longo ended the workshop by stating that he expects to ask the board of aldermen Wednesday to allow Waveland to take the shelter as its own.

The shelter is built on city property behind fire station no. 2 on Gulfside Drive. Waveland contributes most of the funding, with a share of about $400 per month each from Bay St. Louis telephone calls since then, Lon- and Hancock County, Longo resentatives, although almost all of the commission members are also society members.

Commissioner Richard Fitch explained that the City of Waveland was particularly instrumental in providing the county's only publicly funded animal shelter, which was opened in July 1983.

Longo estimated that Waveland, although paying the same $400 as the other entities do directly to the shelter, actually contributes closer to $1,400 a month when considering items ranging from utilities to disposal of the bodies of euthanized animals and a new vehicle for the city dog warden.

He even cited time lost off other city projects when "our city employees are running around behind the sewer plant trying to catch the strays that somebody's dumped off in the night.'

The agreement regarding the commission operating the shelter for the political entities has remained informal, never having been reduced to writing, said Board Attorney Lucien Gex, who left early; City Clerk Arcelyn Dastugue; and Ward One Alderman Barbara Rappold, who arrived only a few minutes before the workshop closed, were the only public officials other than Longo attending Monday. The other three aldermen were absent.

Fitch and Ardley Hanemann, both original members of the commission, explained to the mayor that there has always been problems between the commission and the Humane Society, which provides voluntary help with the shelter and such animal-related projects as a spay-neuter program.

However, the problems have become severe only in the last six to eight months, since Thyla Rogers became society president.

According to Barbara Jo

Fitch, who dropped out as Rogers' opponent for the office because she felt at the time that Rogers could provide benefits as a leader. Rogers has become a problem because she advocates shelter reforms the commission three Humane Society rep- finds impractical or unnecessary.

Richard Fitch said he feels the shelter animals do not need baths, blankets and outside walks, reforms that Rogers has already enacted.

"She wants the shelter animals treated the same way we treat our pets," Hanemann explained.

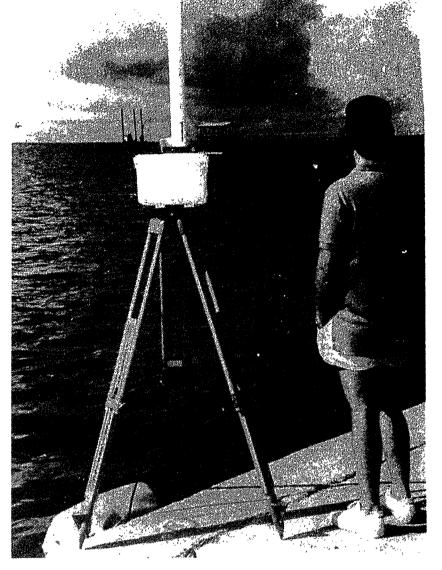

Warren Skelton and Lisa Hall, the two shelter employees, said they still have the blankets but do not use them.

Skelton estimated that about 10 percent of the animals brought into the shelter are lost pets who will be retrieved by owners or are adoptable pets. The other 90 percent are strays, which will have to be euthanized.

Skelton said he feels that giving such an unwanted animal a bath and a blanket for a few hours or days before euthanizing it "gives it false hope. It's much more humane to leave it sitting in a run and not talk to it at all. Then it doesn't expect anything."

BaySide Fire District commissioners resign

BY DENA BISNETTE

Four commissioners of the BaySide Park Fire and Water Protection District have resigned, leaving only a single commissioner who was appointed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors last month.

The district has been the subject of controversy since it was created in 1986. At that time, a group of residents of several areas served by the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department, including Ansley and Bayou Phillips, voiced opposition because the commissioners were not chosen by elections. Their names were included in the document establishing the district and were approved as part of that document without being publicly read.

Joyce Garcia, one of the original five commissioners and the current commission president, has resigned along with Willie J. Ellis, Lionel L. Ladner Jr. and Michael J. Shiyou. Shiyou and Ellis were also two of the original commission members.

A letter signed by the four and delivered to the Sea Coast Echo stated, "We, the commissioners, have resigned because we petitioned the taxpayers of the district mainly for water and sewerage since fire protection was already in effect."

"We will not be responsible for the four mills being collected from each property owner that

Three local candidates will be on the ballot Saturday in a special election to determine who will be the new Highway Commissioner for Mississippi's 27-county Southern District.

Billy McDonald of Pass Christian, Buddy S. Broadway of Picayune, and Burton D. "Fip" Johnson of Bay St. Louis are among the field of nine who have qualified as candidates for the position vacated by commissioner Bob Joiner when he resigned after being indicted on charges of embezzlement earlier this year. McDonald, 52, a Harrison County supervisor before resigning to make a bid for the commissioner's post, placed second behind Joiner in the 1987 election. He is basing his platform on five points, financial accountability, highway improvement, railroad safety, honesty in government, and experience.

"I am the one candidate with a track record of getting roads built," McDonald said.

"My stand for honest government is a matter of record. It will never change," he added.

Broadway, 52, a civil engineer with Broadway Engineers and Land Surveyors, worked with the state Highway Department from 1958-62, and from 1962-66 was an engineer for the city of Picayune.

There are many projects in this district already in progress. I pledge to finish what has been started as soon as possible for the least amount of time and public funds," Broadway said.

among

Johnson, a retired contractor, served as sheriff of Hancock County from 1947-51 and as building inspector for Bay St. Louis for 15 years.

"With my knowledge of government and the construction business, I feel I can do the job with honesty and dedication,' Johnson said. Other candidates for the position are:

William "Bill" Appleton, 63, a civil engineer from Jackson County; George Touart, 39, a Pascagoula City Council member and director of marketing a LMH Inc; Sidney A. Barnett, 48, a Lucedale municipal judge; A. Wellington Gibbs, 53, an administrative law attorney; Haskel "Pat" Patterson, 60, a car dealer from Hattiesburg; and State Senator Ronnie Shows from Bassfield.

Charles Gottschalk, Hancock County Election Commission chairman said, because of the large field, it is unlikely one candidate will recieve a majority of the vote. If that is the case a run-off election will be held on August

A large turn-out is not expected, according to Gottschalk.

"This is an expensive and not very interesting election," Gottschalk said.

"The election and the run-off, if needed, will cost approximately $15,000 after paying the poll managers and paying for publication of the ballot," he added.

Employment Security Commission reports lowest rate for June

JACKSON— Mississippi Employment Security Commission Director Linda Ross Aldy announced Tuesday that the June jobless rate rose seasonally to 7.8 percent, eight tenths percentage point above last

This slight increase was due primarily to schools across the state closing for the summer and students joining the labor

"This rate, though higher than last month, is still 2.8 percentage points below the June 1987 figures and is in fact the lowest rate for the month of June since 1980," said Aldy.

In a total labor force of 1,149,300, place of residence employment for June stood at 1,059,200 or 92.2 percent of eligible Mississippians being ever employed during the month of June in Mississippi. Manufacturing establishments provided the largest number of jobs numbering 235,100; up 1,700 from May and 6,200 above June 1987. These figures represent the largest number of jobs in manufacturing since October 1979.

Nonmanufacturing jobs stood at 649,200 down 5,400 from May bu 19,600 more jobs than June 1987. Seasonal losses in public education represent most of the decrease in nonmanufacturing.

The remainder of the economy continued to show steady improvement with the most dramatic being the marked improvement in manufacturing over the last 11 month.

The only significant loss in employment was a seasonal loss of 11,500 jobs in public education.

During the past year, Mobile Medic has responded to hundreds of emergency calls in Hancock County.

These calls were in such areas as Necaise Crossing, Leetown, Rocky Hill, Catahoula, Kiln, Standard, Diamondhead, Ansley, Lakeshore, Pearlington, Clermont Harbor, BaySide Park, Shoreline Park, Waveland, Bay St. Louis and all parts in between.

We at the newspaper probably get an opportunity to see Mobile Medic's technicians in action more than the average citizen because of our coverage of accidents in the county.

The efficiency of Mobile Medic has continuously improved over the years, credited in no small measure to the continuing education of the ambulance attendants.

The benefits of the $39 membership are unmatchable when you consider a non-member would pay about $425 for some emergency treatments. You have to consider that is before you get your bills from the doctors and hospitals, and your Medicare and insurance may only cover part of the cost. The amount of the charges for a non-member depends on the type of call and uses of supplies.

We know many people feel they are not old enough to worry about needing ambulance service, but one must realize many of the calls over the years have been for very young children and teenagers involved in accidents.

We never know what time of the day or night we may need the service, no matter what our age.

July is the only month to subscribe at the low rate of $39 per family. You can get a coupon from an advertisement in this issue of The Sea Coast Echo.

We hope you won't need their services for the coming year, but if you need them and have a family membership, you will save many dollars.

Governor's Weekly Column

Gov. Ray Mabus

Since I began supporting the unit system of government for all Mississippi counties, I have heard two major arguments against it.

One is that it will not work in big counties, but it will work in small counties. The other is that it will not work in small counties, but it will work in big

There is an abundance of evidence to show that the unit system of government will work in any county, big or small.

What will the unit system of government do for you? It will provide the same or more service at less cost. And, it will help prevent corruption.

Counties big and small have been plagued by corruption and high costs, and counties big and small can be helped by the unit system. Already it has worked in Tunica, Neshoba and Coahoma counties—all of which are small and rural.

And the unit system is working in counties as large as Ranking County.

Recently, the entire Rankin County Board of Supervisors resigned. The governor had the opportunity to appoint a new board and all five of his appointees agreed to make Rankin County a 'pure' unit system

Each agreed to cut their salaries in half from $24,000 a year to $12,000. They did so because they considered it a part-time, policy-making job instead of a full-time, job where they act as road foremen.

Along similar lines, they saw no need for the county to supply them with pick-up trucks for their personal use. Those two actions alone could save the county more than $100.000 a year.

But let's consider some smaller counties.

Tunica County maintains its roads with about 30 percent of the equipment formerly used under the beat system, and it does about the same amount of work with half the people.

And, under the unit system. Neshoba County reduced personnel costs by 14.5 percent, utilities and contractual services costs by 51.5 percent and the cost of materials by 53.8 percent, according to Mississippi State University.

These kinds of savings, if applied statewide, could result in tens of millions of dollars in savings, according to the Mississippi Economic Council, a statewide economic development group.

Make no mistake about it, the unit system of government is not just about savings, it is a matter of economic development.

Nearly every industry that I talk to about relocating to Mississippi asks a few questions including, "How well is your government using the money we'll be paying in taxes?" and "How much are you trying to improve government so it will be a help rather than a hinderto ance economic development?"

We can help ease such concerns by going to the unit system for all Mississippi counties.

Reports cable tv office move would violate original agreement

The Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

I have just learned that Multivision Cable TV, formerly Essex Cable TV Systems, located at 905 St. Joseph Street. Waveland, will be closing its business office in Waveland on Sept. 1. and moving its office staff to Mobile, Ala. Only maintenance personnel will remain in Waveland.

It is my understanding that when the city granted an exclusive franchise permit for cable ty one of the conditions was that Essex cable would maintain a business office in Waveland.

Why then is the City of Waveland allowing Multivision to close the office and move to

Is it that they haven't even told the City of Waveland that they're moving, in the same manner they have not told their customers?

In addition, Multivision is preparing a newsletter to release with August billing advising customers of a rate increase effective September 1, 1988, but in this letter there is no mention of the office closing in Waveland and the move to Mobile.

They plan to just move out and let the customers find out for themselves.

This, in my opinion, is unethical business practices. It is in violation of the original agreement with the City of Waveland, and I feel the mayor and the City of Waveland should take immediate action to correct this improper action.

Let's avoid the horrors of 1977 in the care of the county's animals

July 18, 1988 Editor

The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir,

I moved to Waveland 11 years ago and shortly thereafter I picked up a stray puppy on the

I called the mayor's office to find out if there was a pound or shelter in the area and was told to call the police department.

When I called them, the dispatcher, a lady, told me to take the animal to the pound on a street off Waveland Avenue.

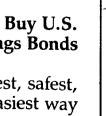

After finding the street, my husband and I drove up and down several times since there was nothing that remotely resembled a shelter.

A man came out of his house and asked us whom we were looking for.

When we told him he pointed to a dilapidated structure and said we didn't want to go there and that it should be burned

We did go over, and what we found was horrendous. Dead animals, no food, no water, yet a few dogs and puppies were alive.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds Your surest, safest, and easiest way to save!

If these animals had had any strenght at all, they would have been able to get out on their own since there was just a little makeshift fence.

I let them out. I wrote a letter to this editor then about what I'd found and what a disgrace it was to the City of Waveland and its residents.

I received a phone call from a man(?) who didn't have the 'guts" to give me his name telling me if I didn't like what I found, I could leave town.

I also received calls from people thanking me for writing the letter since they had been trying to get the city to stop sending people over there.

I have been to the present shelter once and didn't like what I saw—it was filthy.

I called the then president of the Humane Society because I thought they were overseers, having been instrumental in getting the shelter going.

From the 'Letters to the Editor,' there seems to be a lot of dissention among the commission members.

How long is their term in office? How were these persons selected? I think the residents of Hancock County should get more involved and attend the commission meetings and offer suggestions.

I feel confident that most residents of Hancock County who truly care about their animals and take proper care of them want someone on the Animal Commission as well as at the shelter who is active in the Humane Society and dedicated to the welfare of the animals.

If not, will it be 1977 again??? Barbara Moody Waveland

We realize it will be hard for some folks to remember to get out and vote on Saturday for the special Highway Commissioner's post.

Some nine candidates are seeking the post for the Southern portion of our state and it is a very important position.

We as motorists all use the highways the victor will be responsible for, and many of us are aware of our dangerous Highway 603 in Hancock County. A project of four-laning a portion of Highway 603 is reportedly underway, and many of us are awaiting for more than just survey markers to get underway. One of the things we do have to be aware of is the fact

We are happy to see the U.S. Corps of Engineers making borings for sand samples in the Bay.

As many of you know, Hancock County's leaders are concerned about our Beach Road and the effect the elements have in areas where our sand has been washed

The sand beach serves a two-fold purpose and it is hoped the U.S. Corps of Engineers will find a good supply of sand for beach replenishment.

While on the subject of the beach, it is good to see your County Supervisors are taking bids for the making of improvements on the pier at Washington Street.

The American Legion's Memorial Public Pier has been very popular in recent years, and upgrading of the facility will really help the local area.

The county has a 25-year lease on the facility from the American Legion. The area is one of several targeted for recreational development in Hancock County. The Sand Beach Technical Advisory Council has been working with the county's leaders and it looks like the committees many hours of work are beginning to show.

It looks like it won't be too long before The Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier in Waveland will be in operation.

We know it is in a very good fishing area, as we have caught our share of speckled trout there for years as many fishermen have done before us.

We know many residents are ready to try their luck from the most modern fishing facility in Waveland.

Saturday is the big fishing day for youngsters of the area sponsored by the Gulf Coast Sportsmen's Club.

The fishing rodeo's headquarters will be at the American Legion's Memorial Pier, Beach Boulevard and Washington Street, Bay St. Louis.

The rodeo is open to all youngsters age 13 and under with trophies for first, second and third place in seven saltwater and two freshwater categories.

The members of the Sportsmen's Club have been working very hard in recent weeks to acquire some very nice gifts. These gifts, some donated by local merchants, will be drawn after the trophies are awarded at 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Shorty Karl, rodeo chairman emphasizes there will be no acceptance of catfish or stingrays. Fishing can be from the shoreline, piers, boats or wading from area waters. Registration is free and will begin at the headquarters at 6 a.m. until 2 p.m. on the rodeo day. All registrants will receive a free Coke and hot dog. Even the younger boys and girls may participate as there will be a special crab division for those age six and We hope there will be a lot of boys and girls trying

Filter strips eligible

By S. Ryan Thompson Mississippi Cooperative

Extension Service Cropland adjoining a body of water which can be converted into a vegetative filter strip is now eligible for the conservation reserve program in addition to highly erodible cropland.

Between now and Aug. 5, farmers and landowners have an opportunity to enrol! their land

The process involves submitting a bid to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for the amount of money per acre, per year the landowner would accept to take the land out of production.

For cropland adjoining streams, creeks, rivers or other bodies of water to be eligible for CRP, the land must be capable of reducing the delivery of sediment to the water body, according to a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency publication. Erodibility is not taken into consideration.

Vegetative filter strips have been eligible for CRP since the last sign-up period in February, according to Dr. Eddie Funderburg, soils specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Another change in the eligibility requirements involves land in stream beds.

"Before, land had to be slop-ing to be considered highly erodible. Now, land that is flat and in a stream bottom will probably be eligible, but the details haven't been announced," Funderburg said.

The goals of the conservation reserve program are to conserve soil by removing highly erodible cropland from production, to improve water quality and to reduce surplus crop production.

"Emphasis is remaining on soil conservation, but it's shifting to include water quality as well." Funderburg said.

The program allows producers that have farmed row crops on highly erodible land at least two years from 1981 to 1985 to receive a per acre cost from the government to take this land out of production for 10 years. Funderburg said about 25.5 million acres nationwide were placed into the conservation reserve program between 1986 and 1988, including 550,000 acres in Mississippi. Lands enrolled in the program must be planted in trees, grass, filter strips or wildlife cover, Funderburg said. "Normally, a mixture of trees and wildlife cover works best," he said. "Farmers are allowed to charge hunting rights for extra income and at the end of the program, a 10-year life of the program, except during severe emergency situations, Funder-

The maximum bid accepted in the last several sign-up periods was $45 per acre, per year. But Funderburg said farmers should not assume accepted bids will be the same in the seventh sign-up.

Sign-up will be held at the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. For more information on specific questions about the conservation reserve program contact the local county Extension office, the ASCS, Soil Conservation Service or county forester.

We've been making it possible for South Mississippians since 1899

"We have not received any cooperation and have been informed we would not receive any cooperation from the board of supervisors with regard to water and sewerage."

"We find it impossible to operate under these conditions."

Board of Supervisors Attorney Gex stated that only move the resignations has made necessary on the board's part is appointment of four replacement commissioners.

According to Gex, the commissioners were apparently dissatisfied because they wanted to spend some of the district's four mill tax revenue on water and sewerage. However, the Mississippi Code specifically states that any special district tax revenues levied for a specific purpose must be used for that purpose.

The law states that the commissioners appointed to such a district are charged with overseeing the use of those tax revenues.

The fifth commissioner. Richard Fayard, said he has been told by the board that the new commissioners will probably be named at the Aug. 1 board meeting.

Fayard said he did not know about the resignations until after they occurred.

He had been appointed last month after one of the original commissioners, Albert Biehl, resigned to spend more time working on the recently established Hancock County Lawmen's Association, for which he serves as president.

Fayard said he attended the first meeting after he was appointed, then was notified prior to a meeting that was supposed to have been conducted July 6 about a postponement due to illness of two commissioners.

The next thing he heard, Fayard said, was that the resignations had occurred. He learned that from Beat One Supervisor Robert Peterson rather than from any of the commissioners.

Fayard was the only commissioner who was also a member of the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department, although he no longer actively fights fires due to a foot injury.

He feels his membership on the commission will help the working relationship between the commission and the fire department.

"I think we'll have a great working relationship. A lot of people were disappointed because they (the former commissioners) fought the fire department," he said. "I think within a year people in our district will see a tremendous change in our fire department.

He said he expects the first meeting of the new commissioners to be the second Thursday in August, about a week later than regularly scheduled, in order to give time for the new appointees' bonds to be obtained.

Martin DeSalvo, a Bayou Phillips resident who has contended that the original commission members were illegally appointed and who sued, so far unsuccessfully, to prove his point, said, "That's great. That means I Won."

"See, I was right all along but the judge couldn't do anything to help.'

DeSalvo, who operates a neighborhood watch program and has said that he donates much of his time to assist his neighbors, had contended that the commissioners should have been chosen by an election among district residents, then recommended to the supervisors for appointment. He added that past community service should have been considered. In addition, DeSalvo had contended that he, not Biehl, should have been chosen to represent Bayou Phillips. Although he is running for Beat Four supervisor, DeSalvo said he would still be willing to take a place on the commission if it is offered because "wherever the people want me, I'll go.' "I want to be where I can serve the people." He said he had felt that the way the commission conducted its meetings, which he alleges were not only closed to the general public but to fire department members as well, were not in compliance with the law governing such commissions. Garcia could not be reached this week for comment on the resignations.

society, said he was more concerned about the health problems the reforms are causing.

He explained that the baths and walk necessitate moving animals from one area to another, which can spread disease.

The blankets, he said, were left too long without being washed or changed and caused skin rashes.

In addition, having them stored unwashed in the shelter spread germs and viruses that caused disease to go through the shelter much more quickly, infecting more animals than usual.

One of the biggest problems that surfaced when the blankets were used was a virus called parvo, which can be fatal to dogs. LeBourgeois stated that a number of dogs and puppies that might have been adoptable otherwise had to be euthanized due to parvo.

He added after the meeting that some of the viruses that carry diseases, including parvo, are not killed by ordinary laundering of the infected bedding materials.

He said he had talked to Rogers about the contamination problem but that she apparently did not understand, as she has continued to advocate use of blankets.

The veterinarian also orders the medication used to euthanize the animals for the shelter. Because dosage is based on the animal's weight, LeBourgeois has calculated that 50 tons of animals have been euthanized already this year.

"That's roughly 4,000 animals a month," he said, asking Longo and the commissioners to consider the unseen expenses of disposal, such as body bags, a freezer to keep bodies of animals euthanized on weekends until disposal is possible, and hauling costs.

"The unseen costs are just unreal," he said.

The mayr said he feels it is highly likely that Waveland has been providing all of those unseen costs.

LeBourgeois added that in his opinion, Longo's suggestion of changing the shelter from a three-entity facility to a facility for the city only complies with his professional opinion, which states that the shelter is too small for the number of animals that could be brought in each month.

He explained that Waveland's dog warden, Ed Abson, had told him that he has had to cut back on the number of dogs he rounds up because no more room is available.

The veterinarian said he is concerned about the number of animals continuing to run loose, endangering themselves and

He said the animals range from "the shepherd that goes wild and chases the kid on the bike" to "the dogs I see dodging traffic on US-90, the ones people get out of their cars for in 55 m.p.h. traffic or nearly run off the road trying to avoid."

He added that there have been traffic fatalities resulting from people who have run off the road because animals stepped out in front of them.

In addition, Waveland is faced with a problem not common among other shelters, which is an increase in the number of unwanted animals in September that results largely from the abandonment of pets no longer wanted by summer residents.

LeBourgeois also said he is concerned about using volunteers in the shelter. He worked with a shelter program in Kenner, La., before coming to Waveland and found that, for some reason he is yet unable to determine, that use of volunteers tends to undermine the morale of paid workers.

Longo said his concerns regarding volunteers have more to do with management of public funds and a recent crackdown on regulations by state and federally authorities.

He admitted that he is afraid that if volunteers were allowed used for the shelter, a violation of regulations might inadvertently occur and "something like Operation Pretense would be all over us.' Because he has no more land to manage the tax revenues to offer the shelter, Longo said he would ask that Bay St. Louis and Waveland either contribute additional funds to the shelter or be gradually phased out, with the shelter becoming Waveland's in January.

Some animals could still be accepted from the county or Bay St. Louis on a fee basis when room is available, he added.

"A few dollars more would be worth spending to have a good shelter and to have our own," the mayor said.

Skelton and Hall expressed their concerns about job stability if Waveland takes over the shelter, but Longo said he is not looking at a change of personnel and even mentioned keeping the current commissioners who are from Waveland, including Hanemann, Richard Fitch, Barbara Jo Fitch and Cel Dumestre. Dumestre was unable to attend Monday night's meeting.

"I was so in favor of a shelter and it was such a struggle to put it together," Longo said.

He still feels that his original proposal for a shelter with 24-hour service supplied by three workers, each represent-

• • Continued from Page 1A ing one of the three entities and working an eight-hour shift, was the best idea. He is not in favor of contract services for the capture of loose animals.

The mayor said the next best move would be a full-time dog warden for each entity with a local shelter for each, with the county's facility located in one of the more populated areas like Diamondhead.

"Let them set up a local shelter and make everybody happy. Let's quit this fighting," Longo

The controversy is apparently explosive enough to have resulted in a bomb threat.

After commission members left to attend a Humane Society meeting at Waveland Library, Longo remained behind at city hall to brief Rappold on the discussion she had missed.

They were interrupted when a member of Waveland Players, who were conducting auditions in the civic center, came in to report that police and firefighters were searching the library due to a bomb threat.

She said she had been told the threat was made "because the Humane Society is supposed to meet there. Authorities who searched the building after receiving the threat found nothing, Fire Chief David Garcia stated.

Woman calls 911, housefire stopped

BY DENA BISNETTE Bay St. Louis firefighters successfully stopped a kitchen fire from spreading in a Spanish Acres home Wednesday afternoon after the occupant of the building called 911. The woman, Mrs. Terry Robertson, was home alone at the time the blaze broke out on the kitchen stove. She told Bay Police Officer Shane Corr that she woke up shortly before 4 p.m., hearing her smoke alarm going off and smelling smoke.

She said she had left a pot on the stove and was asleep on a sofa in an adjacent room when the fire started. She had apparently turned on the wrong burner when she attempted to heat a pot of tea.

Corr said she had stated that she took a cookie sheet and tried unsuccessfully to beat the flames out, then called 911. The officer who answered the phone then relayed the call to the fire and the Bay St. Louis Police department. Fire Chief Andrew Lizana scene was provided by Hancock stated that the smoke alarm was sounding when firefighters arrived at the scene and was probably what caused her to

Dryden said, "More individuals annually buy tickets to Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) rodeos than to regular season NFL Football PRCA prize oney last year was more than $16 million, almost as much as the PGA Golfer's Tour. Biloxi's Rodeo prize money will total over $25,000.

Not only is the Mississippi Coast Championship Rodeo sanctioned by PRCA, but the Women's Professional Rodeo Association as well. That means, Dryden said, that spectators will see the very best cowboys and cowgirls as well as the top stock in the South. Several of Circle D's bucking broncs and bulls wave worked on the best competitors in the world at the PRCA national Finals Rodeo, the Superbowl of rodeo competition.

A new addition to this year's rodeo will be the Belgian Horse Team. The perfectly matched Belgians are the gentlest and strongest of the draft horse breed, each weighing in at over 2,300 pounas.

The giant horses stand over 19 hands tall and wear fourpound horse shoes that are eight inches wide. The elegant show harness required to pull 520 pounds.

Other events at the rodeo include bareback riding, bull riding, barrel racing, steer wrestling, saddle bronc riding, calf roping and world famous bull fighter clowns.

Reserved seat tickets are on sale at the coliseum box office and all Ticketmaster outlets for $9 and $7.50 plus computer

LIGHTNING STRIKES ONCE, TWICE, FIVE TIMES—Diamondhead golfer Florence Holt on July 7, while playing a round on Diamondhead's Pine Course, sank a hole-in-one at hole no. 2. During play the following day, her companions joked that they hadn't seen the previous day's ace and for her to show them how it was done. At the same hole, using the same club, a seven iron, Holt fired away repeating the previous day's feat. Holt, who has been playing golf for 25 years has made five holesin-one in the last two-and-ahalf years. She made one on May 3 this year. According to Holt the odds of making a hole-in-one are one out of 33,000 shots. "It is nothing but luck; it's no big deal," she insists. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

Solving muddy water fishing problems

It happens every spring, summer and autumn, to novice and professional anglers alike: a long-planned fishing trip or a big tournament is plagued with rain. The water muddies, and fishing action slows to a standstill. At times like this, many bass fishermen pack their tackle and head home. Others determinedly stay on the water, trying to salvage whatever they can from the conditions.

A few, like top bass tournament professional Denny Brauer of the Evinrude Pro Staff, have learned how to catch bass in muddy water.

"When the water turns muddy," explains Brauer, the 1987 Bass Anglers Sportsmen Society Angler of the Year and a fourtime winner in national competition, "I move to the backs of tributary creeks. Here, the water will muddy the fastest from shoreline runoff, but it will also clear the fastest, too."

"The backs of creeks have another advantage," adds Brauer, "which is that they will also have the warmest water. This means the bass there will be the most active, an important factor if the lake you're fishing is still cold. Most of the pros I compete against agree that cold, muddy water is just about the worst of all possible bass fishing conditions."

At times, the Evinrude pro notes, it is possible to "out run" muddy water by fishing the lower end of a big impoundment.

Normally, upper lake tributaries muddy the fastest because they are the most shallow, but on some impoundments that are basically all shallow, even lower end creeks will muddy quickly.

In the creeks, Brauer looks for different forms of cover to fish. Muddy water often means rising water that covers new shoreline, and this "new" cover, such as grasses, bushes and shrubs, frequently attracts

"In rising water, it seems as if the fresh cover filters out mud and silt," Brauer explains, "and bass move into these areas, even into extremely shallow water."

These are active bass, too. Spinnerbaits retrieved beside the brush, or jigs dropped into the cover, often draw vicious strikes. Brauer likes a single blade willow leaf spinnerbait that features a size five blade and a white or chartreuse skirt. Crank baits are also good lure choices. "In newly flooded vegetation," says Brauer, "some of the fish will hold extremely tight on cover. They'll also be suspended, so another way to catch them is by flipping or pitching. For this, I'd recommend a jig or plastic worm, especially if the bass aren't aggressive and won't hit the faster lures.'

Another muddy water fishing technique many of the top pros use, particularly on lakes with abundant vegetation like milfoil, hydrilla or water hyacinths, is to fish the outside edge of that vegetation. It sometimes appears as if this vegetation acts like a filter to the silt, so bass concentrate as close to it as possible.

Under these conditions, one of the top lure choices is a buzz bait, especially if the water is warm and the bass are aggressive. Brauer prefers a buzz bait that makes a lot of noise and creates plenty of commotion.

He retrieves it as slowly as possible along the edge of the vegetation; the heavier the greenery, the slower he makes his retrieve.

"In really muddy water, I think sound is important," explains Brauer, "so I use lures that create sound by moving water, such as the big blade spinnerbait, a buzz bait, or a wobbling crank bait. If I fish a worm in muddy water, I use one that has a vibrating tail that swims when I move it."

On lakes characterized with steep, high bluffs, bass frequently move to the ends of those bluffs to escape muddy water. There; explains Brauer, where the banks don't slope as severely, the composition of the bottom often changes and more cover, such as bushes or bottomgrowing moss, may be present. Bass may be holding tight to this cover, just as they do in creeks where the water is rising. In this type of water, the jig and plastic worm are excellent lure choices, and should be worked slowly in and around the cover. For active fish, a crank bait can also be tried.

Still another muddy water fishing technique is to work the leading edge of the muddy water as it moves slowly down a lake. Bass probably aren't actually moving ahead of the mud, as some anglers believe, but rather, are simply becoming more aggressive. Good lure choices for this type of fishing include spinnerbaits and crank baits. Brauer recommends using slightly larvibration, and working them at various depths between the muddy and clear water. "The sight of muddy water ger lures that produce a lot of discourages a lot of anglers," concludes Brauer, "but it really shouldn't. There are a lot of ways to fish it, and in some instances, the bass are almost easier to catch because the muddy water pinpoints their locations so well.

BILOXI—The fishing industry on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is changing. A wave of excitement is being generated about a new fisheries industry based on 'latent fisheries Latent fisheries resources describes about 14 species of the coastal herring complex found in coastal waters that were virtually unknown four years ago, and probably the least understood group of fishes in the United States. The group contains herring, sardines, anchovy, shad and other species, once thought to be too small in size for economic importance.

And while traditional Gulf Coast favorites like shrimp, oysters, flounder and red snapper are holding their own, far too many fishermen are competing for the finite number found in coastal waters.

The latent resources complex came into play when members of the national marine Fisheries Service were surveying coastal waters with the Japanese in hopes of finding squid for the Japanese market.

"We didn't find squid, but we did find butterfish," said Dr. Andrew Kemmerer, director of the National Marine Fisheries Service in Pascagoula. "Butterfish is not a member of the Coastal Herring Complex, but is found in similar size, location and quantities.

"We have known there was a large number of butterfish in Orleans daily newspaper the Gulf for years, but everyone thought they were too small for the commercial market," Kemmerer said. "But we found that are large enough to be marketed.

Then about two years ago, Linda Rosa, director of economic development in Jackson County, pulled together a group of people in leadership positions to discuss the possibility of reviving the floundering seafood industry on the Coast.

"My interest came as a result specialist.

regarding action Louisiana was taking to revive their seafood industry," Rosa said.
One of the agencies working with Rosa is the Sea Grant Advisory Services of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension

"We work closely with the people in Jackson County and the other coastal counties on all aspects of the seafood industry," said David Burrage, extension marine resources

"In looking at the latent resources, the butterfish appeared to have extraordinary potential," Rosa said. "We explored ways to get some of the shrimpers interested in this potential industry."

Rosa and her committee secured grants totaling $100,000 to retrofit shrimp boats to harvest butterfish. Grants came from the Mississippi Department of Energy and the Gulf and South Atlantic Fisheries Development Foundation.

Seven shrimp boats were reworked to harvest the newlyfound butterfish. Harvest of the Most butterfish are exported to Japan, where they are considered a delicacy, bringing as much as $15 per pound.

"Our studies showed that an average shrimper can gross about $100,000 per year," Rosa said. "If they can piggyback shrimping with butterfish, they have a potential of about $400,000 per year."

There is a ready market for butterfish at the present time, but Rosa realizes that as others enter the business, markets will have to expand.

"We are going to Japan in July to try to expand this market," she said. "And we haven't scratched the surface on harvesting and marketing the coastal herring complex—we know there's a world of potential in this area."

Sports medicine seminar set tonight in Slidell

A Sports Medicine Seminar being sponsored by Slidell Memorial Hospital and Medical Center's Sports Medicine Center is scheduled for tonight at Slidell City Auditorium.

The seminar is free of charge and open to local athletes, coaches and interested sports enthusiasts.

The seminar will begin at 7

In addition to a panel discussion, refreshments will be provided and door prizes will be given away at the conclusion of the seminar and will include tickets to Louisiana State University, Tulane, and Saints football games as well as some autographed balls.

Featured at the seminar will be Doug Arnold, physical therapist and trainer for the New Orleans Saints; Pam Withee, physical therapist; Dr. James Newcomb, family practitioner; Coach Jim Marshall of Tulane University; and Coach John Mitchell, Louisiana State University.

Topics will include: Effects of Taping; Precautions to Take When Training in the Heat; and How and What Colleges Look For When Recruiting High School Players.

Pre-registration is required and may be made by calling 649-8689.

Here's a health warning: What you don't know about the prescription drugs you take can hurt you. For instance, did you know certain drugs should only be taken with meals? Or that some prescription drugs won't work as well if they're taken at the same time as other medications? A new book can help you become a more informed medication consumer.

It's called the AARP Pharmacy Service Prescription Drug Handbook, sold by Little, Brown & Company. This comprehensive and authoritative book, offers answers to questions on safe, effective use of medicines for everyone over 50.

This helpful book, from AARP Books, features information on 450 basic drugs and hundreds of drug "families." It includes warnings and guides on interaction with food and other drugs, and special precautions for the mature patient. It's now available at bookstores across the country.

RANDY CASTELLO of Mississippi Power Company takes his turn as a lecturer in the Junior Achievement Program.

back to school Executives go

Five local business people returned to high school this semester. They took no tests and received no grades but their efforts were not in vain. These executives returned to school to bring the business world into three of teacher Mike Ladner's classrooms at Bay Senior High School.

They are business consultants for Junior Achievement's Project Business program. For one hour a week for twelve weeks the consultants met with their classes of ninth grade students to discuss topics including: America's Economic System; Supply, Demand and Market Price; and Personal Economics.

The students participated in discussions and activities used to illustrate the business topics. One activity called "Burger

Breakdown" illustrates the cost breakdown of a hamburger and women volunteering their time Rex Gilbert, Mississippi Power Company; Kathy Fernandez the factors involved in the price in the Spring 1988 program and William Stechmann, Coast

Mature Behavior Is The Key To Mature Treatment

By Dr. Ann F. Jarratt 4-H Youth Development Specialist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

"My parents 'baby' me ... I don't like it. How do

Why do they "baby" you? Have you enjoyed being babied in the past and recently have decided that you don't like it? If that's the case, your parents may not have gotten the message that you're ready to stop relying so heavily on them and to start making more decisions on your own.

Don't depend on your parents' guessing how you feel about this subject. Tell them. A word of warning-don't expect the babying to stop if you act maturely one day or in one situation and then when it feels better you become a whiny little child. You must send clear messages—in words and behavior that you have put aside your baby ways.

Be patient. Your parents may need a little time to realize that their baby really is growing up and is ready to assume more responsibilities. That realization also points out that they're getting older

While your parents are adjusting to the idea of a more mature you, keep reassuring them that they're on the right track by sharing your feelings with them and demonstrating that you are trustworthy and responsible.

Burdette receives scholarship

Frank Burdette of Pass Christian has received a Davenport Spica Scholarship at Millsaps College.

The Davenport Spiva Scholarship was established to encourage students with great potential for academic success and an academic record reflecting their willingness to use this ability productively to enroll at Millsaps.

The scholarship fund was established by the late Mrs. Mary Davenport Spiva to honor her husband and her father. Mr. and Mrs. Spiva were 1925 graduates of Millsaps.

Burdette, a graduate of St. Stanislaus High School, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Burdette III. While in high school, he was a member of the National Honor Society, the Junior Engineering Technological Society, the high school yearbook staff, Campus Ministry, Students Against Drunk Driving, the Big Brother Program and Social Services Program.

He also participated in varsity track and high school intramurals. He served on the staff of the Episcopal Diocese Division of Youth and as president of the Episcopal Young Churchmen.

Dr. Jerry M. Boone, president of Ferrum College in Virginia, delivered the commencement address at William Carey College. He was a member of the Carey class of 1964.

Almost 200 graduate and undergraduate students participated in graduation ceremonies in Smith Auditorium on the Hattiesburg campus.

In his comments to the graduates and their guests, Boone said that each generation must deal with problems specific to it. "All of the reference points of my generation (such as the assassinations of John and Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Watergate, and the fall of Saigon ending the

BUDDY EROADWAY

Southern District Highway Commissioner

Approved by Jim Harrison, Campaign Chairman. Paid for by Hancock County Republican Executive Committee.

"PARDON OUR PROGRESS"

A major re-construction project is planned for widening an overlay of Dunbar Avenue, St. Francis Street, Old Spanish Trail (from U.S. 90 to City Limits), the entire length of Bouslog Street and other unpaved streets.

This work is expected to begin (barring any unforseen problems) by mid-July and be completed in November, 1988.

As in any major construction projects the city is aware that its citizens will experience some inconvenience and asks that you bear with us during this construction period.

FAIR PLAY-Gore Seymour, left, of Bay St. Louis, and Bubba Raiteri of Hattiesburg, examine their fuzzy prize won at the University of Southern Mississippi Spring Fair. The fair is an annual event sponsored by the University Activities Council. Seymour, an accounting major, is a graduate of St. Stanislaus High School. He is the 22-year-old son of Melba Seymour of Bay St. Louis. Raiteri, 22, is a psychology major. (USM Public Relations)

Gorman attends soil and water conservation youth camp

Nicole Gorman, senior at Bay Senior High in Bay St. Louis was one of 53 students who participated in the third Annual Mississippi Association of Conservation Districts, Inc., Soil and Water Conservation Youth Camp during June at Mississippi State University.

Gorman was selected on her interest in soil and water conservation, along with an academic standing in 25 percent of her class.

The camp is sponsored by the Mississippi Association of Conservation Districts, Inc., in cooperation with Mississippi Soil and Water Conservation Commission, Mississippi State University and the Soil Conservation Service.

The entire purpose of the camp was to educate young people to the importance of soil and water conservation in Mississippi.

Nicole Gorman and the other camp participants were exposed to all aspects of soil and water conservation including conservation measures to improve cropland, grassland, woodland and wildlife.

Participants learned about conservation of our natural resources through experienced speakers, field trips and planned recreation.

Through the Conservation Youth Camp, Gorman had the opportunity to learn about conservation, make new friends and enjoy many fun and exciting activities.

If you or someone you know would be interested in next summer's youth camp, contact your local soil and water conservation district at 255-3225 for information.

The Right To Vote Is A Gift

We, the State Highway Department employees, work daily to improve our highway system in the Southern District. On July 23, we will elect a new Highway Commissioner. We urge you to join with us in voting for the candidate of your choice. Your vote is extremely important to avoid special interest groups electing a person to benefit their personal needs. Our system is a good system and can be strengthened and improved by voter participation.

On July 23, we must count on you to join with us to improve our highway system in the southern district. PLEASE VOTE.

OUTSTANDING GREEK PLEDGE—Andrea Marie Ambrose of Bay St. Louis, left, has been named Outstanding Greek Pledge at the University of Southern Mississippi's annual Greek Week Awards Banquet sponsored by USM's Intrafraternity and Panhellenic councils. Ambrose, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ross Ambrose, is a freshman majoring in computer science at USM. A dean's list scholar, Ambrose is a member of Kappa Delta social sorority, vice president of Phi Eta Sigma, a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, a member Lambda Sigma, a basketball cheerleader and treasurer of the USM soccer team. She was named Outstanding Freshman Woman for 1988. Ambrose is a 1987 graduate of Our Lady Academy in Bay St. Louis. (USM Public Relations)

USM pr staffers take awards

JACKSON - Five University of Southern Mississippi Public Rouse for what contest judges director W.E. "Bud" Kırkpatrick for "USM Alumni News." Southern Mississippi Public Relations workers took home 10 Relations Association of Mississippi's annual conference May 26-27 in Jackson.

USM awards and honorees include: -- Two first place awards in the interview category, to Philip D. Hearn, assistant public relations director for news, for what judges call "good interviewing techniques" used in his companion stories titled "Speechless" and "Patience." The articles describe the USM School for Children with Language Disorders director's work and tell the story of one of her students.

-- First and second place in television presentations of less than five minutes, for broadcast producer Stephen Rouse's two 30-second public service announcements promoting USM. Their respective titles are "Ingalls" and "DeChiaro." The two television spots were produced with the assistance of USM film instructor Steve Mims and students from his advanced cinematography

-- First place in public rela-called "a greatidea" -- installing USM news stories over the telephone.

-- First place in news stories went to staff writer J. Syd Conner for his "excellent job in explaining a research project as it impacts on the public." The story, titled "A Bite Out of Crime," relates a technique developed by a Hattiesburg dentist and a USM photojournalism professor, which uses ultraviolet photography to help solve crimes by identifying bite marks on human flesh.

-- Second place in interviews went to Conner for "Writing to Mummy," a story about a USM hieroglyphics course.

-- Second place in brochure copy went to Sharon T. Ward, assistant news editor, for "concise writing throughout" in her brochure detailing the USM nursing school's financial needs and development, titled, "Development: School of Nursing."

-- Third place in magazine design went to public relations

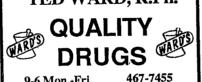

-- Third place in news stories awards from the College Public the USM Newsline actuality went to Hearn for "thorough service, which plays recorded coverage of an issue close to constituents' hearts" in his series of articles tracing the 1986 state higher education budget crisis and its effects on USM.

Ward, who last year was named to the CPRAM Board of Directors, was chosen as 1988-89 secretary for the group.

Four of the five award winners are USM graduates. Conner earned a bachelor's degree at Millsaps College in Jackson.
